live. We all have a lot more to offer our community than we think. The leadership program has taught me how to develop and apply skills that will benefit both myself and the community.”

Delphi mayor Lee Hoard said he attended LCC because he considered it important. “It’s my opinion that one should never stop learning and will never know all there is to know about leadership. Another reason was to be able to network with others who are willing to step up and have resources to pull from.” The program will not be offered again until next year. In the meantime, continuing leadership development opportunities will be offered to the LCC graduates.

County to participate in Severe Weather Preparedness Week

By Debbie Lowe
Staff writer

Governor Mitch Daniels has declared March 5-11 as Severe Weather Preparedness Week, according to Carroll County Emergency Management Agency Director Justin Darling. Darling advised the purpose of the declaration is for EMA to practice with emergency responders and community members about what to do in case of tornadoes and other types of severe weather.

“March 8 is the date for the state-wide tornado exercises,” Darling said.

He explained two drills are planned that day. One will happen in the morning for the benefit of school participation and the majority of the workforce who will be at their workplace.

The second drill will be in the evening to allow families the opportunity to practice their own personal safety measures within their homes and communities.

Darling said after the state initiates a warning, it goes to the Indiana State Police who relays it to dispatch at the sheriff’s department. The sheriff’s department contacts area fire departments by radio and they in turn will sound the warning sirens.

Darling said he will be contacted by the sheriff’s department or alerted directly by the National Weather Service.

According to the State of Indiana’s Emergency Response Division’s notification, local emergency personnel are encouraged to review warning and communications policies, update alerting lists and test warning local systems.

Darling reported the county is “in the midst of updating the local plan.”

“Our local emergency responders think all hazards warning sirens should be initiated by the sheriff’s department or by EMA,” he said.

Darling stressed there is a need for all residents to own “weather and all hazards alert radios.”

“People who live in outlying areas cannot hear hazards alerts,” he said.

“Or a warning could be sounded late at night when people are asleep,” he continued. “We want all residents to be as safe as possible.”

“Alert radios can be purchased at places like Radio Shack or online and they cost between $30 and $50. This is very reasonable for the protection they afford,” Darling concluded.

Darling encouraged area residents to contact him at (765) 564-4243 with questions and concerns.

Guidelines for Keeping Glyphosate an Effective Tool

Marestail, waterhemp, lambsquarters and common ragweed are several weeds showing either resistance or tolerance to glyphosate. To keep glyphosate effective for the long run, consider the following stewardship guidelines:

- Use the Roundup Ready® crop that best fits your farm, then plant conventional crops using non-glyphosate herbicides the following year
- Rotate glyphosate with herbicides containing other modes of action
- Avoid more than two glyphosate applications in any field over a two-year period. If this isn’t possible, add alternative chemistries as a tank-mix partner or in a sequential application
- Use full rates of glyphosate to minimize tolerant weed escapes
- In burndown programs, always tank-mix glyphosate with 2,4-D or other non-glyphosate herbicides.

In Roundup Ready soybeans, consider soil applications of products like FirstRate®, Python® WDG, Pendimax® or Gangster herbicide. FirstRate can also be post-applied as a tank-mix partner with glyphosates like Glyphomax® XRT or Durango™ herbicide.

In Roundup Ready corn, using reduced to full rates of soil-residual products like Keystone®, Keystone LA, FullTime®, Surpass®, TopNotch® or Python WDG herbicide eliminates weed competition for nutrients and moisture.

To determine the best crop and herbicide rotation plan for your farm, contact your local ag retailer or visit www.GlyphosateStewardship.com.

12 alternatives to lashing out at your kid.

The next time everyday pressures build up to the point where you feel like lashing out—STOP! And try any of these simple alternatives.

You'll feel better . . . and so will your child.

1. Take a deep breath. And another. Then remember you are the adult. . .
2. Close your eyes and imagine you're hearing what your child is about to hear.
3. Press your lips together and count to 10. Or better yet, to 20.
4. Put your child in a time-out chair. Remember the rule: one time-out minute for each year of age!
5. Put yourself in a time-out chair. Think about why you are angry: is it your child, or is your child simply a convenient target for your anger?
6. Phone a friend.
7. If someone can watch the children, go outside and take a walk.
8. Take a hot bath or splash cold water on your face.
9. Hug a pillow.
10. Turn on some music. Maybe even sing along.
11. Pick up a pencil and write down as many helpful words as you can think of. Save the list.
12. Write for prevention information: National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse, Box 2866, Chicago, IL 60690.

Stop using words that hurt. Start using words that help.
