for $4,575.50 was accepted for finish work on the underground storage tanks at the jail.

County auditor Beth Myers said wells must be monitored an additional two quarters and paperwork must be filed with IDEM for completion of the project.

"We're hoping that someday this (clean-up project) will come to an end," commissioners' president Bill Brown said.

Myers said there would be an additional cost, of approximately $2,000, for the final action of closing the wells.

A grant proposal for $44,516.11 for courthouse security equipment was tabled for further review. Questions about associated costs were raised by commissioners and others in the audience.

County council member Steve Ashby asked about the cost of installation and council member Jerry Hendress asked if there was a maintenance agreement to be met as an additional cost.

"I guess I have too many questions about this," Brown said. He suggested commissioners hold a special meeting to hear answers to questions before approval.

Submitted by Emergency Management Agency Director Justin Darling in absentia, the proposal is due by the end of October.

The county will auction surplus county equipment and items Nov. 4 at 6 p.m. in the Yeoman Auction House. Carroll County was awarded the Indiana Public Employers' Plan safety award for 2005. The award rewards prevention of accidents among employees and emphasizes cost savings to governmental agencies by keeping workers on the job.

The 4-H Community Building will be used by German Baptists Oct. 20, First Step Preschool Oct. 25 and Flora Lions Club Oct. 30.

Signs on the courthouse lawn will be posted by Carroll County Advocates for Literacy Oct. 18 to 27 and Delphi Tri-Township Volunteer Fire Department Oct. 28 to Nov. 4.

The courthouse rotunda will be used by Delphi Chamber of Commerce Nov. 27 to Dec. 31 and Delphi Tri Kappa Dec. 2.

"It's easier to not be opposed, but it makes you work harder," she said. "Having opposition makes you realize you can't take everything for granted. I want the job and she does, too." Brewington said she does not have to account for her time spent in the office because she is an elected official, but she puts in full days for the county.

"An elected official answers to the voters every four years," she said. "As an elected official, you are in charge of your office and what goes on there."

Brewington welcomes calls from voters at her home number, (574) 967-4738.

Brewington urged voters to exercise their right to cast a vote for their chosen candidate by simply saying, "Just vote - that's your right!"

mother of three said she doesn't have all the answers, but that doesn't daunt her.

"I realize I've got a lot to learn," she said. "But I'm just not afraid to ask questions."

"I came from a large family and we were taught to be responsible. It wasn't a choice," Mansfield added. "I am very grateful I was taught those things."

Mansfield said she has not formally supervised staff, but in her lengthy experience in the Delphi School Corporation position, she has trained others and been responsible for an office.

"I would expect anyone working in my office to take responsibility for their work, like I do," she said. "I cannot sit - I like to keep busy."

Mansfield said if elected, she would evaluate employees' workload in the office.

"We're all getting paid to work," she said. "It would be a real good time to look at what every person does in the office. If I can save the county money, that would be great," she added.

Mansfield described her campaign as "relaxed."

"I feel like a lot of people know me and they know I have integrity," she said. "I plan to get to as many doors and let people meet me to get to know me as I can. I've learned a lot and met so many wonderful people."

"This has been a very positive experience," Mansfield said. "I won't listen to gossip. The best way to curb gossip is to just not listen."

Mansfield encouraged voters to contact her at her home, (765) 564-2766.

"I'm willing to answer as many questions as I can," she said. "If I don't know the answer, I will get it!"
