

Wallar celebrates 100th

Adaline Groninger Wallar is celebrating her 100th birthday today, May 7. She is a life-long resident of Burrows.

Wallar

Mrs. Wallar was born May 7, 1908, to Addie and Frank Groninger. She had two brothers and three sisters, all of whom are deceased.

She met Clayton Wallar on a blind date while attending Ball State University. They were married July 23, 1931, and he preceded her in death.

Mrs. Wallar began teaching music and art after she graduated from the university. She taught in 13 different elementary schools in Indiana. She also gave private piano and violin lessons.

Around the time people began to install electricity in their homes, she persuaded her husband to open Wallar Electric, an appliance store they operated for 50 years.

Mrs. Wallar has two sons, Charles and Jim. She has six grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

She has lived with one of her sons and daughter-in-law for the past seven years. She attends Lighthouse of Hope United Pentecostal Church in Logansport.

Cards are welcome at P.O. Box 40, Burrows, IN 46916.

Letter carriers to conduct annual food drive

Comet staff report

Letter carriers in Carroll County will join their counterparts nationwide to help stamp out hunger by collecting non-perishable food items on Saturday during the 16th annual National Association of Letter Carriers (NALC) Food Drive.

Items donated during the largest annual one-day food drive in the nation are then delivered to local community food banks, pantries and shelters across the country.

The U.S. Postal Service has partnered with the NALC in this effort since 1993. The "Stamp Out Hunger" food drive has collected over three-quarters of a billion pounds of food for community food banks and pantries nationwide.

"The Carroll County Postmasters are proud to support our nation's letter carriers," said

Flora Postmaster Melinda Luttrell. "We also appreciate the generosity of our customers who enable our employees to collect food to replenish community food banks and feed those in need."

Customers are asked to place non-perishable food items next to their mailbox before their letter carrier delivers the mail on the day of the drive. Postal employees do the rest, taking the food to the Post Office where it is sorted and delivered to an area food bank or pantry.

Camden Preservation Society announces award winners

Comet staff report

Camden Community Preservation Society met for dinner on April 28 at the Flora Family Restaurant. The Community Pride and Camden Humanitarian awards were presented. Both are given annually and include the Town of Camden and Jackson Township.

The Community Pride Award is given to an individual or business that has gone out of its way to improve the appearance of either its personal property or its community place of business. This year the award was presented to Gary and Kelly Robey, who have renovated the exterior of the Camden Auto Company. The Robeys are continuing to work on the interior.

"Camden is so excited to have both the renovation and the charming people within their community," said Preservation member Barb McCain.

The Camden Humanitarian Award is presented to an individual, who unselfishly works either behind the scenes or on public projects without ever expecting self-serving recognition. Pete Wagoner, Camden Town Council president, received the award for his leadership within the community and his determination and extensive research in his effort to have the Camden Elementary School remain in Camden.

McCain presented a written memorial tribute in honor of Jacquelyn Frye, Junior Beamer and Evelyn Sharp, all devoted society members who died during the past year.

Congratulations were extended to Jeff Sieber and the 175th Steering Committee for a grand celebration last summer in Camden. Preservation members were recognized and complimented on their contributions to the Camden Heritage Luncheon and the Architectural Tour, both held during the celebration.

HOOSIER HOME COOKIN'

with Allison Meadows

My company, Mulberry Health & Retirement Community, celebrated moms, daughters, grandmothers, sisters and friends in our first-ever Women's Day. And, I performed my first-ever cooking demonstration during the weekend festivities! Paula Deen, I'm not. However, I did use plenty of butter and cream cheese for the appetizer recipes I shared. I think you'll like them too. And, they're perfect little bites for your own graduation teas or bridal showers.

Pineapple Nut Tea Sandwiches are pretty, sweet and tasty. If you prefer, serve the spread on water crackers. Baked Brie with Kahlua and Nuts is a wonderful special occasion appetizer with a pretty strong kick. Serve with wheat crackers or crisp slices of Granny Smith apples. And, finally, Asparagus Roll-ups are delicious with their rich cream cheese filling.

Next week, I'll share a few more of my appetizer favorites. Happy Mother's Day and happy eating!

until thick, stirring constantly. Cool. Stir in nuts. Soften and mash cheese with enough milk to make a good spreading consistency. Combine with pineapple mixture. Spread on thin bread, top as sandwich. Trim and cut into squares.

Brie with Kahlua and Nuts
1/3 C. chopped pecans or walnuts
1/2 tsp. vanilla
1/4 C. Kahlua
3 T. brown sugar
1 1/4-oz. Brie

Combine first 4 ingredients. Place Brie in shallow baking dish, cover with mixture. Bake at 325 degrees for 8-10 minutes. Serve with crackers or baguette slices.

Asparagus Appetizer Roll-Ups
12 slices white bread, crusts removed
1 8-oz. pkg. cream cheese
2 T. chopped green onions
3 bacon strips, cooked and crumbled
24 fresh asparagus spears
1/4 C. butter, melted
3 T. grated Parmesan cheese

Flatten bread with a rolling pin. In a small bowl, combine cream cheese, onions and bacon. Spread mixture over bread slices. Cut asparagus to fit bread. Place two spears on each bread slice. Roll up bread slice and place seam side down on greased baking sheet. Brush with butter, then sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Bake at 400 degrees for 10-12 minutes

Pineapple Nut Tea Sandwiches

2 C. crushed pineapple, drained
1 C. sugar
1 C. toasted chopped pecans
1 8-oz. pkg. cream cheese
milk

In saucepan, combine pineapple and sugar. Bring to a boil. Cook
