100 YEARS AGO

A blinding flash accompanied by a tremendous peal of thunder brought people in the business section to their feet about the middle of the forenoon with a suddenness that would have done credit to a lion tamer avoiding a furious beast. When the excitement had cleared away and the people in the McCarty's pool hall had recovered their wits a look at the outside revealed that the lightning had struck the southwest chimney of the Swegman building in which the pool room was located and tore a small portion of the chimney away and loosened some wires.
